

MONTHLY CAPITAL MARKETS REVIEW

AUGUST HIGHLIGHTS

- U.S. small cap equities outperformed their mid and large cap counterparts by returning 1.77% in August, according to the Russell 2000 index. Large cap equities represented by the S&P 500 index gained only 0.14%, while mid-cap stocks posted a small loss of 0.25%, as per the Russell Mid Cap index. Although year-to-date, telecom stocks outperformed other S&P 500 sectors, they lost 5.67% in August. At the other end of the spectrum were financial stocks with a 3.83% gain last month. Across market cap spectra and investment styles, investors have favored small cap value stocks, with the Russell 2000 Value index gaining 2.49% in August and 14.58% year-to-date.

- Emerging market equities represented by the MSCI Emerging Markets index continued their recovery in August and gained 2.49% and 14.55% year-to-date. While international developed equities finished the month almost flat, as per the MSCI EAFE index, their small cap counterparts represented by the MSCI EAFE Small Cap index posted a 0.59% loss in August.

- Although Federal Reserve officials have been hinting at potential interest rate increases in the near future, August was a quiet month for U.S. fixed income investors. Most fixed income sectors finished the month with modest gains or losses. While corporate investment grade bonds returned 0.20%, U.S. treasuries lost 0.55%, according to the Barclays US Corp Investment Grade index and the Barclays US Treasury index, respectively. High yield bonds represented by the Barclays US High Yield 2% Issuer Cap index continued their recovery by gaining 2.09% in August and 14.35% year-to-date. Emerging markets bonds, which exhibit similar risk-reward characteristics as those of U.S. high-yield bonds, returned 1.35% in August, according to the Barclays EM Hard Currency index.

- The USD posted gains of 1.34% against the Yen and 0.14% against the Euro in August. With Federal Reserve officials getting more hawkish last month, the 10 Year U.S. Treasury yield rose by 8.73% to 1.58%. After losing nearly 14% in July, light crude oil rallied in August to $44.70 per barrel; an increase of 7.45%. The price of gold fell to $1309.25, a decrease of 2.44% for the month.

Fixed income securities are subject to interest rate risk. Generally, when interest rates rise, bond prices fall, and vice versa. Specific sector investing can be subject to different and greater risks than more diversified investments.

Investing in small-cap and mid-cap stocks generally involves greater risks, and, therefore, may not be appropriate for every investor. International investing also involves special risks, including currency fluctuations, different financial accounting standards, and possible political and economic volatility. High-yield (below investment-grade) bonds are not suitable for all investors. When appropriate, these bonds should only comprise a modest portion of your portfolio. Commodities trading is generally considered speculative because of the significant potential for investment loss.

Specific sector investing such as real estate can be subject to different and greater risks than more diversified investments. declines in the value of real estate, economic conditions, property taxes, tax laws and interest rates all present potential risks to real estate investments
